 The image consists of two side-by-side photographs of an industrial water storage facility. The left photograph shows two large, cylindrical, corrugated metal water tanks in the foreground. In the background, there are several tall, white cylindrical storage tanks, some with ladders and platforms. A small white shed is visible near the tanks. The right photograph shows a similar view from a different angle, featuring a tall white tank on the left and a blue cylindrical tank on the right. In the foreground, there is a metal structure with a corrugated metal roof, possibly a pump or control station, supported by concrete blocks. A small white shed is also visible in the background. The ground is dry and dusty, and there are trees in the distance under a clear blue sky.
